PEACH POUND CAKE

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|--------------------|
| 1 Cup Butter - Softened | 3 Cups Sugar |
| 6 Eggs | 3 Cups Flour |
| 1/4 Tsp. Baking Soda | 1/4 Tsp. Salt |
| 2 Cups Peeled, Chopped Fresh Peaches | 1/2 Cup Sour Cream |
| 1 Tsp. Almond Extract | 1 Tsp. Vanilla |

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 10 inch tube pan. Combine flour, baking soda and salt in a bowl. Mix sour cream and peaches in another bowl, cream together butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time beating well after each one. Fold dry ingredients into creamed mixture alternately with sour cream and peaches - beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Stir in vanilla and almond extract. Pour batter in pan and bake for 75-80 minutes. Sprinkle confectionery sugar on top. Note: If peaches are very juicy, drain them on paper towels. Can also use 2 loaf pans & shorten baking time a bit.

RAIN OR SHINE!

ETERNAL PUNISHMENT

There are people who are trying to reason away the reality of eternal punishment (hell). People might ask the question, how is hell consistent with the love of God? We need to have the assurance that God will not send anyone to hell. If anyone ends up in hell they have deliberately CHOSEN to go there. In Deuteronomy 30:19 it says, "--- I (God) have set before you life or death, blessing and cursing: therefore CHOOSE life, that both thou and thy seed may live". That is the invitation that is going forth from God. He wants us to CHOOSE life. Each one of us must PERSONALLY CHOOSE. God did what He could to deliver mankind from hell. "For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved" (John 3:17). "So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just, and shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth" (Matthew 1:49-50). Also read 11 Thess. 1:9, St. Luke 3:17, Rev. 14:11. God in His mercy told us all these things. Jesus said in St. John 5:39 "Search the scriptures ---".

Strategies To Motivate Students To Be More Physically Active

Today's students arguably have more on their plates than any generation that came before them. But even with their hectic schedules, kids still have free time, which many are not always using in the healthiest ways possible.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, nearly one-third high school students play video games or computer games for three or more hours on an average school day. Sedentary lifestyles can increase kids' risk for being overweight or obese, and many parents struggle in their efforts to encourage their school-aged children to get off the couch and embrace physical activities. The following are a handful of strategies concerned parents can employ as they attempt to motivate youngsters to be more physically active.

- Choose the right activity. Physical activity and organized sports are not one and the same. Kids can still be physically active even if they are not athletic or if they are simply not interested in sports. Find an activity kids can embrace, such as hiking, swimming or even riding bikes, and they will be more likely to get off the couch.
- Limit screen time. Kids spend lots of time in front of computer and television screens, which can be detrimental to their overall health. Parents can place restrictions on the amount of time kids are allowed to spend surfing the Internet, playing video games and watching television, encouraging youngsters to spend time enjoying the great outdoors or playing with friends rather than spending it staring at a screen.
- Join in the fun. Parents can set positive examples by being physically active with their children. Rather than retiring to the couch after dinner, take nightly walks or bike rides as a family. This is a great way to get kids off the couch, but also a great way to spend more time together as a family.
- Involve kids in your own pursuits. Parents who are weekend warrior athletes can involve their kids in their own activities. Take kids along on weekend jogs, kayaking trips and so on, all the while explaining the important role physical activity plays in living a healthy lifestyle.

Tips For A Healthy School Year

Students are most likely to get sick when school starts because being at school put children's immune systems to the test, offers The Mayo Clinic. Young children who are in close proximity to others in large groups tend to spread organisms like bacteria and viruses that cause illness. Breaking the cycle can take some work, but it's possible to make this a healthy school year.

ENCOURAGE HANDWASHING
Frequent handwashing is a great way to prevent illness. Handwashing habits are essential for school-aged children and should be taught as soon as possible. Children should wash their hands after they use the bathroom and before they eat. If they've been playing outside or have interacted with children who are sick, handwashing can help remove some of the germs lingering on their hands. Most effective is washing hands with warm, soapy water.

STOP (SOME) SHARING
Sharing develops good manners and can foster new friendships. But children should be discouraged from sharing food, drinks and other personal items. Once the item has been placed in a child's mouth, it should not be shared.

PROMOTE ADEQUATE SLEEP AND NUTRITION
While adults may need between seven and nine hours of sleep a night, children often require more. The National Sleep Foundation recommends eight to 13 hours of sleep a night for school-aged children. Begin adjusting sleep schedules during the latter part of summer vacation so that children can readjust to their regular sleep schedules. Parents also should feed kids nutritious diets consisting of a variety of foods. Avoid high-calorie junk foods, reserving such items only as special treats every so often.

DONATE CLEANING SUPPLIES
Some schools may be underfunded and may not have enough supplies to keep all of the classrooms and surfaces clean. Parents can help by donating cleaning wipes so that students and teachers can thrive in clean, healthy environments.

Dr. John P. Boyle, D.M.D., Family Dentistry

With the end of summer, some of us are getting the children ready for school. We remember to find the pens, pencils and notebooks. We shop for new shoes and clothes. But are the children up to date on their dental care? Now is the time to schedule routine checkups to prevent dental emergencies and get personalized advice on cavity prevention, orthodontics and wisdom teeth.

As for the adults, don't ignore your own care. Too often, as we put the children or the job first, we neglect our own needs. During the summer we take vacations to refresh our spirit, but what time do we reserve to protect healthy teeth or restore problem teeth? Might I suggest that the time is now?

How Parents Can Simplify Students' Transition To College Life

College is the first taste of true independence many young students experience. Whereas mom and dad were always around to make sure kids were out the door on time and homework was done, that safety blanket is no longer there once kids move into their dorm rooms. The transition to college life can be exciting. But while students typically welcome that transition with open arms, parents often worry about how their children will handle their suddenly more independent life. Parents who want to help their kids make as smooth a transition to college life as possible can take steps during their children's senior year of high school to help them adjust to their new surroundings and responsibilities more easily.

- Let kids fly solo on school day mornings. New college students have to make many adjustments upon moving into their dorms, and getting themselves out of bed each morning and off to class on time is one such change. Parents worried that their students will sleep in when mom and dad isn't around to remind them to wake up can start letting kids fly solo on school day mornings during their final year of high school. Let kids set their alarms, prepare their own breakfasts and get out the door on time all on their own. By the time their freshman year of college arrives, kids will know how to handle their mornings by themselves.

- Teach kids how to develop budgets. Another problem many first-year college students encounter is an inability to effectively manage their money. Whether you plan to give kids an allowance while they are in school or intend for them to work part-time for their spending money, use senior year of high school as an opportunity to show kids how to budget their money. If they don't have accounts already, open bank accounts in your youngster's name, and insist that he or she start paying for his or her expenses via these accounts. Resist the urge to give high school kids gas money or money for shopping trips if they have already spent their allowances so they can learn how to effectively manage money between paydays. In addition, teach kids about the right and wrong ways to use credit cards, including the importance of paying balances in full and on time.

- Let kids handle more standard responsibilities. Adults tend to take more mundane responsibilities like making doctor's appointments or grocery shopping for granted. But kids likely have no idea how to handle such tasks. Parents can encourage their high school seniors to make their own medical appointments. In addition, take kids along on grocery shopping trips, explaining how to find sale items and which foods to buy and which to avoid. Nutrition is not always foremost on the minds of college freshmen, but those who understand the importance of healthy diets are more likely to buy nutritious meals than junk food.

- Emphasize time management. Today's high schoolers are busier than ever before, so many may already be prepared for the juggling act that is college life. But college students have more free time than their high school counterparts, so parents can emphasize the importance of managing that free time wisely as opposed to spending it lounging on the couch or napping. The transition from high school to college can be both exciting and difficult. But parents can get a head start on that transition by encouraging their youngsters to be more independent during their final year of high school.
